Luke 10:25-37

Wanna know how to get to heaven? It's simple. Jesus gives us the formula today: Love God with all ya got, and love your neighbor. Ta da! You're in!!

"Ah," the lawyer asks him, "But who is my neighbor?" Lawyers have a tendency to complicate things. Son #1 should have been a lawyer. I'll make a succinct statement, and he'll counter with a thousand questions and two thousand arguments. Conversations with him take three to four hours. Which I absolutely love, because good conversation is my lifeblood. Bring it, baby.

And Jesus brings it in a roundabout way. He knows that he can't just give his scholarly friend the true answer: "Everyone." He lets him figure it out himself.

Aside from the half-dead guy in the ditch, there are three main characters in the story of the Good Samaritan, one of the most famous passages in the entire Bible: the priest, the Levite, and the Samaritan.

First, the priest. We can figure he probably is going down the road on a donkey, on the way to or from the temple. When he sees the injured man, he crosses to the opposite side of the road. Because the injured guy was stripped and unconscious, he is anonymous. His clothing and his dialect would have told where he was from. Because neither is apparent, the priest can't tell whether he is a Jew or not. If he isn't a Jew, the priest could be "unclean" by coming closer than two yards from him. If the priest is unclean, he can't offer sacrifice in the temple, which means no salary or food for his family. He would have to stand with the other unclean people outside the temple and start the lengthy and expensive cleansing ritual. It involved finding, buying, and burning a red heifer to ashes. That took a week to do, which is probably why he went to the other side of the road.

Next, the Levite. Levites assisted priests in the temple, and this one probably had oil and wine with him. He may have seen the priest walk by and assumed he should do the same. Or he may have feared for his safety. The man in the ditch could have been a decoy for robbers hiding in the bushes. He, too, gets as far away as possible.

Now, the Samaritan. Hated by Jews and vice versa, the Samaritans were bound by the same rules as the Jews. He risked being unclean, and the injured man sure wasn't from his neighborhood. He had oil and wine, same as the Levite, but he used his to soothe the man's wounds. He, like the priest, had a donkey, and he used his to carry the man to safety. The two silver coins he left to the innkeeper were enough to give the stranger lodging for two months. This generosity is way above the norm for any era.

Don't you wonder what the lawyer thought when he found out that his neighbor is a despicable Samaritan? And if you look further, his other neighbors are a battered, bruised, anonymous guy in a ditch, a self-involved priest, and an uncertain Levite. Quite a crew.

If we look closely, we will find that same crew around us. Will we recognize our neighbors?

Is there a way to measure our relationship with God?

If I love according to the Lord's command (Leviticus 19:18), what feelings should I experience? Is there an "emotional yardstick" for evaluating my relationship with God?

No, there is no yardstick to measure the kind of love Jesus commanded. Although honest, devout, and charitable actions can make us feel good, true love often takes real effort and forces us to forget ourselves. Experience demonstrates that loving others is sometimes easy, but it may also involve real sacrifice. The Gospel calls this unconditional love agape.

Agape is distinct from romantic love (eros) and from familial affection and friendship (philia), both of which expect the other to respond. Christian love is more a decision to be generous and selfless and less a good intention or positive feeling.

Jesus is the perfect illustration of agape. In his suffering and death, Jesus willingly endured betrayal, ridicule, rejection, and physical pain out of love for the Father and for us. At the Last Supper, knowing what would happen, he told his disciples to feel good: "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you....Do not let your hearts be troubled or afraid....If you loved me, you would rejoice..." (John 14:27-28). This was a difficult, perhaps impossible, challenge—even Mary experienced sorrow in her Son's life (see Luke 2:35). And so we cannot equate our emotions with God's peace, for it "surpasses all understanding" (Philippians 4:7).
